

What's That Awful Smell?

Book review by Kate Konrad

I love to incorporate literature in my lessons. Kids of all ages love to be read to, and it provides a great springboard for new ideas. When working with primary grades, I love letting them get a little silly (within reason, of course!) This book provides a little silliness and kids will love creating word chains, improvising, and singing on the topic of “stinky things.” See the improvisation lesson provided to use this in your classroom any time of year!

Trumble Park Elementary first graders will be performing their music program based on this book on Thursday, April 26th at 7:00pm. Come see what they create!
